A terminal window with a title bar that says "mca@localhost:". The menu bar includes "File", "Edit", "View", "Search", "Terminal", and "Help". The terminal content shows a shell script being executed:

[mca@localhost ~]$ echo "enter your name";read name;echo "hello $name";

 The script prompts for input, and the user enters "amir suhail c". The script then outputs "hello amir suhail c". The prompt returns to `[mca@localhost ~]$`.

[mca@localhost ~]$ echo "enter your name";read name;echo "hello $name";
enter your name
amir suhail c
hello amir suhail c [mca@localhost ~]$

A screenshot of a Linux terminal window. The window has a title bar with 'Activities' and 'Terminal' buttons, and a system clock showing 'Feb 29 08:19'. The terminal itself has a menu bar with 'File', 'Edit', 'View', 'Search', 'Terminal', and 'Help'. The prompt is 'mca@localhost:~'. The user has entered three commands: 'cat > school.txt', 'mv school.txt college.txt', and a final prompt line.

mca@localhost:~$ cat > school.txt mca@localhost:~$ mv school.txt college.txt
mca@localhost:~$
